The younger Johnston graduated in medicine at the Medical College of Virginia, but never practiced. He continued with his brother in the drug business until the firm broke up after the war. Mr. Johnston never married, and for the past ten years had lived near Midlothian, in Chestorfield county, keeping a bachelor's hall.

Thomas E. Nimmo.

Such was the quiet unobtrusiveness of his life that few people will appreciate the loss the community and the State have sustained in the death of Thomas E. Nimmo.

E. Nimmo.

He entered the Confederate Army in 1861, and continued a faithful soldier to Appointation. Gentle as a woman in civil life, he was yet stern and resolute as a Spartan in the shock of battle. Illis career as a soldier, however, may be safely left to his immediate comrades, who loved him to a man, and who will cherish his memory as long as a survivor remains. To make known hig usefulness to the State, in the fine work he did in her library, is the special object of this testimonial.

It is well known to students of Virginia cld in her library, is the special object of this testimonial. It is well known to students of Virginia history that the library contains a collection of invaluable official manuscripts, pertaining to the history of the Colony and the Commonwealth.

During nearly all the years since the establishment of the library, these manuscripts, while carefully preserved, have lain as an undressted mass, many of them so fragile and perishable from age that successive librarians had to be careful, almost to the point of exclusion, in permitting them to be haddled. When Mr. Eggleston beginne Socretary of the Commonwealth, at the earnest instance of Mr. W. G. Stanard, of the Virginia Historical Society, and of the then librarian, he appointed Mr. Nimmo to arrange and classify these manuscripts, the Library Committee having recommended an annual appropriation from the Library Fund for that purpose.

"Honor to whom honor is due," in this nual appropriation from the Library Fund for that purpose.

"Honor to whom honor is due," in this behalf. With the defit touch of a woman hehalf. With the det touch of a woman he handled and arranged these crumbling papers; with the keen discrimination of an antiquarian proud of and familiar with his State's history, he classified them; during all the time extending every courteay and much help to persons who came to examine them. And now, neatly classified, and secure in dust-proof boxes, they are accessible to every student. Hardly Beverly, or Stith, or Campbell, or Grigsby, has done more in preserving the muniments of our history.

Two thousand years ago the great Roman poet wrote this proud and boastful epitaph for himself, which time has verified for the twenty centuries that have elepsed:

fied for the twenty centuries that have elepsed:
Exegi monumentum aere perennius Regalique s'au pyramidum altius.
'I have reared a monument harder than brass and higher than the royal pyramids, which the wasting rains, the furious storms, nor even the flight of time itself shall be able to destroy.'
Let these precious manuscripts, rescued and preserved by Thomas Nimmo, constituts his monument for all time; and let future historians of Virginia perpetuate inte his monument for all time; and let future historians of Virginia perpetuate his name by acknowledging the debt of grattinde they and their readers owe to him for having done a noble work so well well.

His funeral takes place to-day at noor from the Broad Street Methodist Epis-cepal Chubch.

The Tee-Dee Money Prize.

The third prize in the Tee-Dee Money Contest was won last week by Hugh M. Moffat, Barton Heights, who wrote the verse below. The other prize poem will follow to-morrow.

There was a man in our town Who thought he was wondrous wise; He said it was a waste of cash For one to advertise;

But when he saw the custom go
In to a Tec-Dee store,
He straightway made a sign, "To let," And tacked it on his door.

That Tee-Dee man, with honest pride, . Has bought a coach and pair, And 'mong the rest he may be seen At coming Horse Show fair;

His cash has grown, so has his "ads.," And patrons not a few, When asked the secret of success Says knowingly Tee-Dee's the thing To Do.
